

Natural Terrain Enduro X (NTEX)

A Natural Terrain Enduro X (NTEX) event is a hybrid off-road motorcycle race that blends enduro-style terrain riding with motocross-style obstacles and racing formats, all built into a single, spectator-friendly course.

At its core, it's a multi-lap race on a closed circuit (often ~1–3 km) that uses the natural landscape of the property - paddocks, bush, sand, hills - while also incorporating man-made Enduro X features such as:

- Rock gardens
- Log and tyre sections
- Seesaws and balance obstacles
- Tight technical turns and pinch points
- Fast open sections or MX-style straights

Riders typically start together in a mass start, then complete multiple laps, with the course designed to test a mix of:

- Technical riding skill
- Endurance and fitness
- Bike control over varied terrain
- Ability to handle pressure in close racing
